SITUATION SUMMARY

Southern California Excessive Heat Event, Multiple Counties

SITUATION OVERVIEW:

Phase II Criteria of the Heat Plan has been met. The National Weather Service has issued Excessive Heat Watches and Warnings for portions of Southern California through early next week.

Updated Forecast Overview

- Prolonged period of very hot weather across most of far southern California through September 16
- Near record breaking high temperatures
- Warm overnight temperatures adding to health threat
- Critical fire weather conditions for Los Angeles, Ventura and Santa Barbara Counties through Monday
- Strong rip current threat Monday-Tuesday. With hot weather, lifeguard rescues could be elevated due to people traveling to the beaches to cool off.
- Showers and thunderstorms likely especially for the coastal mountains, inland valleys and desert areas Wednesday-Thursday which may lead to localized flash flooding
- Slowly moderating temperatures by Wednesday

Actions

- Cal OES is disseminating excessive heat information through:
 - Daily Weather Outlook
 - Cal OES Daily Situation Report
 - State Weather Situational Awareness Briefing to stakeholders

A conference call was conducted Sunday, September 14, 2014 with NWS, State Agencies/Departments and weather event stakeholders.

Resources

- Heath Contingency Plan for Excessive Heat Emergencies (June 2014):
<http://www.calema.ca.gov/PlanningandPreparedness/Pages/Heat.aspx>
- NWS Heat Impact Levels HIL (Experimental product created by NWS). The goal is to provide advanced localized information about excessive heat events. The Heat Impact Level graphics provide a concise way to view where and when heat might have the greatest potential impacts. The graphic is the result of combining local climate information with the 7-day forecast:

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

ACTIVE WEATHER WARNINGS, WATCHES and ADVISORIES:

- http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/wwa_bc_cal.php

Hurricane Odile, Eastern Pacific Ocean

Hurricane Odile was over the tip of Baja early this morning and is now expected to stay over the Baja Peninsula as it tracks northwest through Tuesday evening. Latest guidance indicates it will then weaken and make a right turn towards south central Arizona. This could mean that moisture may not be quite as plentiful as previously forecast and what was experienced with Norbert. However, a surge of low level moisture is forecast to increase thunderstorm chances by Wednesday.

- Located 65 miles NNW southern tip of Baja California
- Moving NNW at 16 mph
- Decrease in forward speed expected next couple days.
- Forecast to pass over or near the Baja California Peninsula through Tuesday.
- Steady weakening is forecast during the next 48 hours.
- Maximum sustained winds 115 mph.
- Hurricane-force winds extend outward 50 miles .
- Tropical storm-force winds extend outward 185 miles .
- No watches or warnings in effect for the U.S.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

An upper level trough will slowly approach the area from the west today and Tuesday. This will bring a chance of showers around midweek.

San Francisco Weather:

A gradual cooling trend will continue inland the next few days as a trough of low pressure slowly approaches the west coast. The approaching weather system will bring a slight chance of showers to the northern part of the forecast area from late Wednesday into Thursday.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

Cooler temperatures for much of this work week. Valley sprinkles, mountains showers, and isolated thunderstorms will be possible for parts of the area today, and again Wednesday and Thursday.

Hanford Weather:

Very warm conditions will continue for the next couple of days with a slight chance of thunderstorms near the Sierra Crest today. An approaching low pressure trough will lower temperatures by midweek with a chance for mountain and desert thunderstorms.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A ridge of high pressure and weak onshore flow will result in very hot weather through midweek. There will be a slight chance of thunderstorms by midweek due to remnant moisture from Hurricane Odile, mainly for the mountains and deserts. Temperatures will likely return to near normal by late in the week as a trough of low pressure approaches from the west.

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Hot weather will continue through Tuesday afternoon under a large area of high pressure. Some moisture and instability will result in isolated showers and thunderstorms each afternoon. Moisture and instability will increase on Wednesday for more widespread showers and thunderstorms, mainly across the mountains and deserts. The added cloud cover and higher humidity will keep it from getting as hot but it will still be uncomfortable with the added humidity and continued above average temperatures. Low pressure off the coast will bring cooler and a little drier conditions Thursday and Friday with lower chances for showers and thunderstorms.

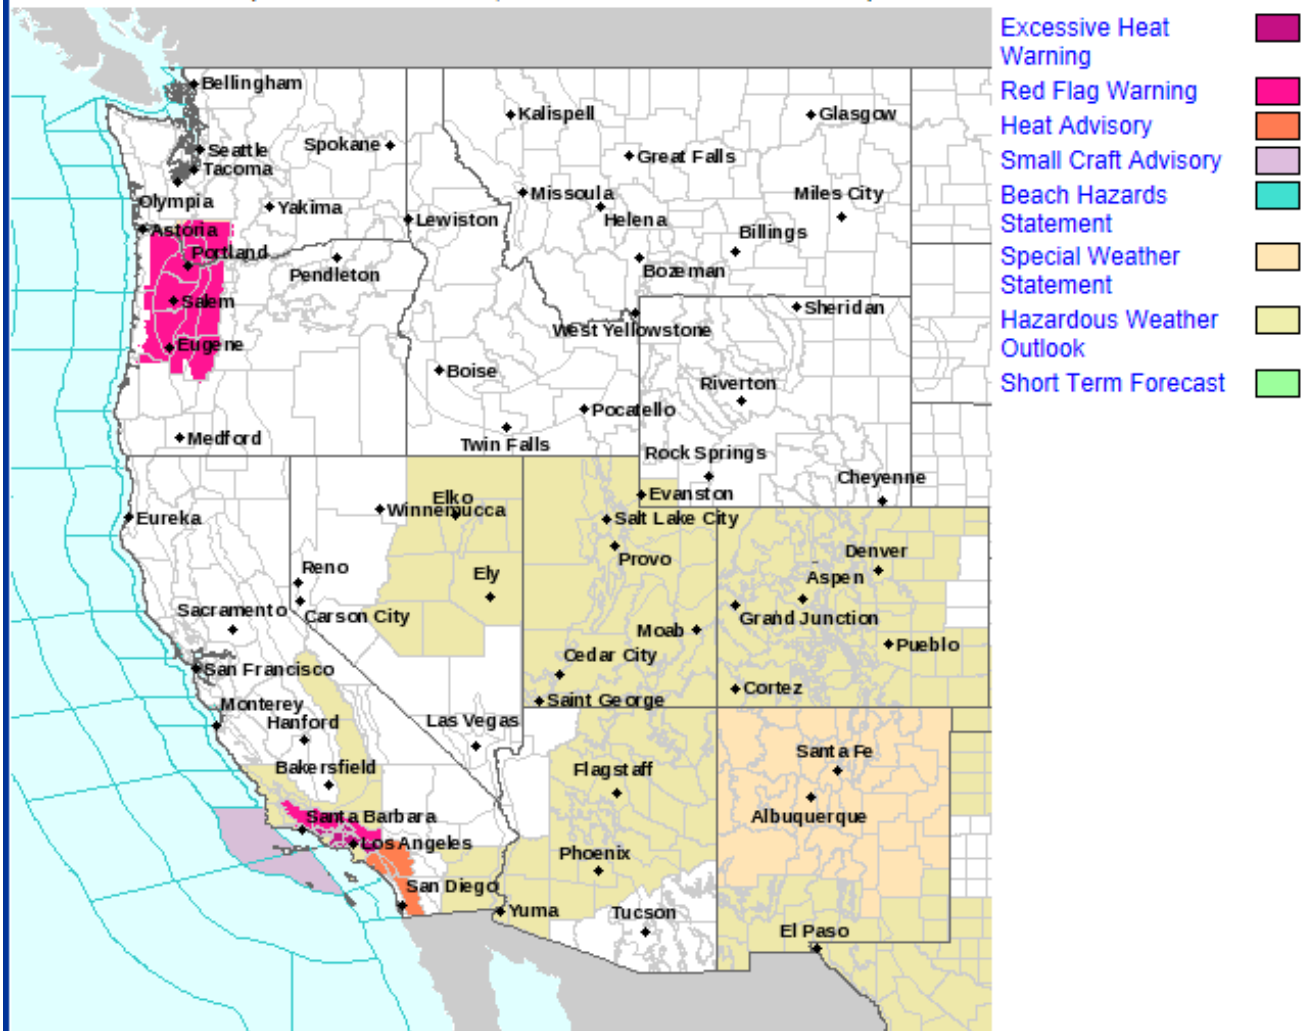

Southeast California Weather:

Isolated showers and thunderstorms are possible across the region today along with some areas of blowing dust. However, moisture will increase substantially across the area on Tuesday and there will be an elevated risk of heavy rain and flooding across the area through the end of the week.
